Gioiello [fr. Ant. Jo(i)el, poi joyau, dal lat. Parl. *iocale ‘proprio del gioco (iocum)’, accostato a joie ‘gioia’; sec XIII] s.m. (pl.m. -i) 1 Ornamento di metallo lavorato, oggetto di valore, con o senza pietre preziose: Pamar propone una nuova collezione di pomoli e maniglie come gioielli, analisi profonda del mondo della decorazione, coinvolgendo autentici maestri 2 (fig.) Oggetto di lavorazione perfetta, opera d’arte di particolare bellezza e finezza: Alba Polenghi Lisca disegna come gioielli mossi dall’aria, trattenendo la dinamica dei fluidi in un istante, in una mano; Giorgio Vigna scolpisce gioielli, togliendo materia, svelandone inattesi cromatismi, come scoperta gioiosa e ancora possibile dell’infinitamente piccolo.

Jew-el [dzu:il] n. 1 a gem; a valuable ornament set with or without gems: Pamar proposes a new collection of knobs and handles that look just like jewels, the result of a thorough analysis of the world of décor, carried out with real Maestros 2 (fig.) a highly valued person or object: Alba Polenghi Lisca designs objects that looks like air-blown jewellery by capturing the dynamism of fluids in one instant; Giorgio Vigna sculpts jewels by subtracting matter: by doing so, he unveils surprising colors: a joyful and still possible happening in an infinitely small world.
